

DISPOSAL PLANT BOND ISSUE VOTE DELAYED BY COUNCILMEN NUMEROUS OPPOSED CITIZENS TAKE PETITIONS TO MEETING

PLANT NOT NEEDED, CLAIM SPEAKERS AS FULL SESSION IS DEVOTED TO DISCUSSION

Weldon, Dr. Jones, Crites, J. I. Smith, W. E. Crist, Hammell, Eagleson and Others Oppose Issuance of Bonds While Noecker, W. F. Baker, Robinson and Kibler Defend It; Marion's Motion Tables Vote.

The question of the issuance of bonds in the amount of $23,000 for the purchase of a sewage disposal plant for the city's use was tabled by action of city council, Wednesday evening, when a motion by Councilman-at-large Frank A. Marion, to place the matter in the hands of the committee of the whole until a later date, was adopted.

The motion was made following one of the most heated discussions in the history of the council, in fact, according to John C. Goeller, president of the body, surpassing the controversy over the location of the Berger hospital and other questions that have come up in the city since he began to take an interest in politics a number of years ago.

ROOM IS CROWDED

More than 50 interested persons, at one time or another, were present in the council chamber. Some were in favor of the city progressing with the issuance of bonds, the money from which would purchase the plant now owned by the Calcar Products Corporation, a group of local business men; others, and this group was in the large majority, were against the issuance of bonds, particularly at this time, for the construction or purchase of any disposal plant. The claims of the former were that council two years ago entered into a "gentleman's agreement" with the corporation to purchase the plant on the Scioto river provided the plant was approved by the state board of health; the claim of the opponents was that a sewage disposal plant is not needed at this time and will not be needed until Columbus cleans up its portion of the river.

EXPLAINS MOTION

Just when council will again take up the question of the issuance of bonds is a matter for conjecture. Mr. Marion, in offering his motion after interrogation by Third Ward Councilman Clark C. Will as to what was meant by placing it in the hands of the committee of the whole said: "Members of this council have not made an effort to familiarize ourselves with the merits of this and other sewage plants. I was not a member of council when this gentleman's agreement was made but I am convinced that the plant as it now stands will work satisfactorily. I move to refer the ordinance back to the committee." This motion was seconded by Councilman C. O. Leist.

Mr. Will then queried: "Are we putting it back for further investigation or until times are better. I would like to know this because I think the people here this evening would like to know definitely."

Mr. Marion—"I would not want to cast a vote here tonight following these numerous arguments. I think we should have time to view other plants and to have a chance to discuss the question among ourselves. I would also like to visit the state board of health; I want to base my decision not on hearsay but upon what that body tells us itself. We are not casting our own opinions when we vote. I am expressing views which are the wishes of the people of Circleville. I want to feel I am right when I vote."

"TWO YEARS OLD"

Mr. Will—"We have had this question before us for more than two years and this is the first time I have heard anything about visiting other sewage plants or about seeking a conference with the state board of health."

Mr. Marion—"I don't feel like killing this thing and it isn't fair that we should kill the measure. I ask that it not be tabled but referred for further investigation. It wouldn't hurt to delay our decision for a month, maybe six months or maybe a year until we obtain the desired information." Mr. Goeller called for a vote on the motion and it was approved. The matter of the sewage disposal

Marion Asks Assistance Of Citizens

Councilman Says Many Important Questions Are Nearing Action.

Residents of the city were urged to take an interest in the affairs of their community at all times, when Councilman Frank A. Marion, Wednesday evening, thanked the signers of petitions protesting the issuance of bonds for a sewage disposal plant.

"Many times this council has before it matters of much more importance than a sewage plant and no interest is shown at all. Numerous times we have held our meetings and not so much as a single person outside councilmen and some city officials are present," he said.

QUESTIONS APPROACHING

"There are several matters coming up in the near future that will affect every person here," he continued, "and I hope all of you show the same interest in these that you do now. All these questions will directly touch your pocketbooks. We are representatives of the citizens of this city and we like to act as the voters think we should."

"City finances, which are in dire straits, street lighting which will have to be reduced because of depleted treasuries, a water rate, the result of which may effect the insurance rates of the community, a gas problem and other things will be brought before council before long and I want everyone here to show that he has an interest in the problems of the city by attending some of these council meetings," Mr. Marion said.

CITES BERGER COST

He asked if taxpayers of the city knew how much the Berger hospital is costing the city and said that it is costing even more than ever expected.

WALTER WANDERWELL

ARREST MAN IN 'YACHT' DEATH

Enmity Originating In South America May Have Caused Wanderwell Fray.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 8.—An enmity born in Buenos Aires which flamed in Panama and led a trail to this tangled waterfront today brought under arrest William James "Curly" Guy, 28, as a suspect in the yacht murder of Capt. Walter Wanderwell.

Guy, who stoutly denied that he had any knowledge of the crime, was arrested early today in a small house in Los Angeles to which he had moved from Glendale the day after the murder.

Detectives following a clue afforded by a quarrel last June between Guy and the world adventurer traced him through a friend to his hiding place.

Bursting into the unlighted house, detectives spotted Guy with their flashlights.

"Stick 'em up," they ordered. "I've got 'em up," he replied. "I know what you want, me for I've been expecting someone to come for me since I read in the papers that you were looking for me. I was just awaiting developments and would have given myself up in a couple of days. I have a good alibi."

First booked in Los Angeles as enroute to Long Beach and for illegal entry to the United States, Guy was brought here early today and booked as "under investigation of murder."

JUDGE PRAISES SCOUTS' WORK IN TALK HERE

Large Crowd Hears Wilmington Barrister at Presbyterian Church

PROGRAM IS GOOD

Officers for Next Year Are Chosen

Praising the Boy Scout movement and pledging himself at any time to be of service to the youth of American, Judge Frank Clevenger, of Wilmington, highly reputed barrister, addressed scouts, parents of scouts and friends in the social chamber of the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening. The occasion was an annual get-together which began with a banquet at 6:30 p. m. served by the ladies of the church. Eighty-five persons attended the banquet and a number more heard the program.

"During all my years on the bench," Judge Clevenger asserted, "I have had to sentence but one youth who had ever had Boy Scout training. I am willing at any and all times to sacrifice my time to talk of this great boys' movement. The training of the youth appeals to me in that the boys are trained to become better citizens."

SPEAKS TO PARENTS

"I am speaking now not to the boys," the speaker continued, "but to the parents or guardians to look out for their boys, and let them know you are interested in them; encourage them. A boy is a good investment."

Judge Clevenger, who has been a prominent figure in some of the biggest trials in Ohio's recent history including the cases of several persons in the infamous murder of Don Mellett, Canton newspaperman, recalled several instances in which good acts toward boys have aided them. One, he recalled, occurred when he was serving in the senate. One of 10 pages was admonished by another senator for some breach in his duties and the boy appeared quite disgusted when Judge Clevenger spoke to him and urged him to forget and to promise to make himself a useful man. Years later, Judge Clevenger said, he was riding through the west when a young man walked up to him and asked if he was not Judge Clevenger. The judge replied in the affirmative and was informed that the man and the boy had been together and the boy had been a father of two children and holding a job drawing a salary of $50,000 yearly.

HEAR OTHER TALKS

In closing his remarks Judge Clevenger admonished his audience not to let the depression cheapen the Boy Scout work.

GREAT BRITAIN TO PAY DEBTS

France Put In Hazardous Position With Herriott Expected To Lose Job.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—Forcing Premier Edouard Herriott into a crisis before the Chamber of Deputies, Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald informed him today that Great Britain will make the war debt payment due to the United States on Dec. 15.

Herriott had hoped to play a waiting game but MacDonald forced his hand in the course of a lengthy conference by telling him Great Britain would not default on her $95,550,000 principle and interest installment—one week from today.

The French premier regarded the British stand as one of complete fairness so far as France itself is concerned but it placed him personally in an extremely hazardous position. The chamber of deputies has left little doubt that it is almost unanimously in favor of defaulting Dec. 15 payment.

MacDonald's action left Herriott no choice but to go before the Chamber and request that body to approve his course in making the payment. Unless an unexpected and 11th hour change of heart is recorded in the Chamber overthrow of the Herriott government appeared inevitable.

'DADS' READY TO REDUCE LIGHTS

Map Showing Where Light Power Would Be Cut Is Ready For Action.

City council is ready to present a plan to the Southern Ohio Electric Co. calling for the reduction of power in a number of the city street lights. A map showing where the reduction would be made was ready for study Wednesday evening but because of the lengthy sewage plant bond issue controversy the plan was not studied.

Mack Parrett Jr., is chairman of the committee on reduction of power in the lights and is ready to present the plan at the next meeting of council on Dec. 21, the next regular meeting.

The light power reduction is a part of the economy plan of the council. It is planned not to eliminate any lights because of the dangers in that but in a number the candle power is thought superfluous.

CAVE CHANCES DIMMER WHILE 2 QUIT FIGHT

Observers Believe Freer Bittering Will be Named As Speaker

WHITE IS BOLTED

Withdrawing Men to Aid Ashlander

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8.—Chances of Representative J. Freer Bittering, of Ashland, in his fight for speakership of the next Ohio House of Representatives suddenly boomed here this afternoon when both Representatives W. T. Roberts of Belmont-co and E. C. Elkenberry of Prebel-co announced their withdrawal from the race.

Both Roberts and Elkenberry said they would throw their support to Rep. Bittering for the prize post.

10 OR 15 VOTES

Political observers estimated that Roberts and Elkenberry would bring from 10 to 15 votes to the Bittering fold.

Announcing his withdrawal from the speakership race, Rep. Roberts served notice that he would be a candidate for Democratic floor leader opposing Rep. Keith Lawrence, of Cleveland, the administration's candidate.

Rep. Elkenberry said he would not be a candidate for any post. Withdrawal of Roberts and Elkenberry from the speakership race was regarded as a severe setback to the administration which had announced the support of Rep. Frank Cave of Mansfield for the post.

Six senators stood out openly against the administration yesterday in the Democratic caucus and brought on a bitter tangle over the proposal of leaders that they make a clean sweep of the senate patronage.

CLERK CONTESTED

The position of Senate Clerk Thomas E. Bateman, Republican, and the posts of his two aides, are the plums. Although Democratic chieftains want all three for the organization, six Democratic senators said "No" yesterday, and threatened to support Bateman, or bolt the caucus entirely, if the issue is pressed.

Bittering's supporters, rallying for the house caucus today, boasted that they have enough votes to defeat Cave. Against them, however, is the powerful opposition of Democratic State Chairman Henry G. Brunner, along with the governors endorsement.

So many disputes arose in the senate Democratic caucus that the only conclusive action taken was in the election of Senator David H. DeArmond of Hamilton as leader of the majority, and even that was a formality and had long been conceded. Republicans elected Senator Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville as the minority leader. Another Democratic caucus may be necessary to attempt peace before the assembly convenes early in January.

DISPOSAL PLANT BOND ISSUE VOTE DELAYED BY COUNCILMEN NUMEROUS OPPOSED CITIZENS TAKE PETITIONS TO MEETING

PLANT NOT NEEDED, CLAIM SPEAKERS AS FULL SESSION IS DEVOTED TO DISCUSSION

Weldon, Dr. Jones, Crites, J. I. Smith, W. E. Crist, Hammell, Eagleson and Others Oppose Issuance of Bonds While Noecker, W. F. Baker, Robinson and Kibler Defend It; Marion's Motion Tables Vote.

The question of the issuance of bonds in the amount of $23,000 for the purchase of a sewage disposal plant for the city's use was tabled by action of city council, Wednesday evening, when a motion by Councilman-at-large Frank A. Marion, to place the matter in the hands of the committee of the whole until a later date, was adopted.

The motion was made following one of the most heated discussions in the history of the council, in fact, according to John C. Goeller, president of the body, surpassing the controversy over the location of the Berger hospital and other questions that have come up in the city since he began to take an interest in politics a number of years ago.

ROOM IS CROWDED

More than 50 interested persons, at one time or another, were present in the council chamber. Some were in favor of the city progressing with the issuance of bonds, the money from which would purchase the plant now owned by the Calcar Products Corporation, a group of local business men; others, and this group was in the large majority, were against the issuance of bonds, particularly at this time, for the construction or purchase of any disposal plant. The claims of the former were that council two years ago entered into a "gentleman's agreement" with the corporation to purchase the plant on the Scioto river provided the plant was approved by the state board of health; the claim of the opponents was that a sewage disposal plant is not needed at this time and will not be needed until Columbus cleans up its portion of the river.

EXPLAINS MOTION

Just when council will again take up the question of the issuance of bonds is a matter for conjecture. Mr. Marion, in offering his motion after interrogation by Third Ward Councilman Clark C. Will as to what was meant by placing it in the hands of the committee of the whole said; "Members of this council have not made an effort to familiarize themselves with the merits of this and other sewage plants. I was not a member of council when this gentleman's agreement was made but I am convinced that the plant as it now stands will work satisfactorily. I move to refer the ordinance back to the committee." This motion was seconded by Councilman C. O. Leist.

Mr. Will then queried: "Are we putting it back for further investigation or until times are better. I would like to know this because I think the people here this evening would like to know definitely."

Mr. Marion—"I would not want to cast a vote here tonight following these numerous arguments. I think we should have time to view other plants and to have a chance to discuss the question among ourselves. I would also like to visit the state board of health; I want to base my decision not on hearsay but upon what that body tells us itself. We are not casting our own opinions when we vote on various projects but are expressing the wishes of the people of Circleville. I want to feel I am right when I vote."

"TWO YEARS OLD"

Mr. Will—"We have had this question before us for more than two years and this is the first time I have heard anything about visiting other sewage plants or about seeking a conference with the state board of health."

Mr. Marion—"I don't feel like killing this thing and it isn't fair that we should kill the measure. I ask that it not be tabled, but referred for further investigation. It wouldn't hurt to delay our decision for a month, maybe six months or maybe a year until we obtain the desired information."

Mr. Goeller called for a vote on the motion and it was approved. The matter of the sewage disposal plant was opened Wednesday evening when Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas read petitions addressed to Mayor B. T. Hedges and members of the council against the issuance of bonds for the construction or purchase of a sewage plant at this time declaring it is not a necessity. The petitions were circulated by H. Scott Eagleson and Vattier and John Courtright. More than 300 names were included in the list which was read by Clerk Nicholas.

"STRONG," GOELLER SAYS
After the petition had been read, Mr. Goeller remarked, "This appears to be a very strong petition what shall we do with it?" On motion of Mr. Marion which was seconded by Fourth Ward Councilman Tull M. Barnes the petition was received and placed on file.

After the regular business of council was transacted Mr. Marion arose and said he did not believe the council should take any action on the third reading of the bond ordinance until some of the petitioners were heard from.

Mr. Marion's statement occurred at exactly 8 p. m. and argument, pro and con, concerning the issuance of bonds, the merits of the plant now owned by the Calcar corporation and other issues, continued until 10:40 p. m. when President Goeller entertained a motion of E. S. Neuding to adjourn.

WELDON LEADS PARADE
The first speaker was Lemuel Weldon, attorney, who declared "Our idea is to express the views of the petitioners who contend that the issuance of bonds for a sewage disposal plant is absolutely unnecessary at this time. The pollution of the Scioto river is due to Columbus and not to Circleville. If this council should spend $23,000 at this time it would be decidedly poor policy. A bond issue of this sort would boost the tax limitation of the city to the highest point; if an emergency should occur in which money would be needed at once the city would be in difficulty. We contend that the cost of maintenance of the Calcar plant would be from $8,000 to $10,000 per year and where would the operating expense go; back to the people of the city who have sewage connections who have to pay from $10 to $20 per year for the right to tap the sewer. Some arguments for the issuance of bonds are that the city would save money at this time but why not wait until the right time comes before taking action. I urgently urge council to wait until the right time arrives."

DR. JONES NEXT
Mr. Weldon was followed by Dr. Howard Jones who declared, in part: "I am not opposed to a sanitary sewage disposal plant but it seems to me until Columbus cleans its part of the river we should not attempt it. As to the merits of the present process, I understand it meets the endorsement of the sanitary engineers who investigated it. My personal objection is to its necessity. I suppose the city employed some engineer as advised in the report of the inspectors from the state department of health in a pamphlet printed on the plant." Dr. Jones proceeded to read a letter to Dr. H. G. Southard, state director of health, from F. H. Waring, chief engineer of the department, concerning the local sewage plant. In this letter the cost of Jurors Say They Believe Man Lied Asserting He Did Not Tell of Love.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 8.—If Sidney Herbert Homewood, stolid riding master, had been just a little more romantic in his attitude toward Miss Charlotte Gibson, society girl who soon will be a mother, he might not today be in prison.

But the little proprietor of the stables in Blauvelt, near here, was "ranquilly indifferent" toward the girl he admitted intimate behavior with that 12 middle-aged men "could not feel he was showing his 'true self'." A girl of Miss Gibson's gentility hardly would have yielded to someone of this type, they reasoned—and voted Homewood guilty of the girl's seduction.

That is the story behind the verdict.

I am willing at any and all times to sacrifice my time to talk of this great boys' movement. The training of the youth appeals to me in that the boys are trained to become better citizens."

SPEAKS TO PARENTS
"I am speaking now not to the boys," the speaker continued, "but to the parents or guardians to look out for their boys, and let them know you are interested in them; encourage them. A boy is a good investment."

Judge Clevenger, who has been a prominent figure in some of the biggest trials in Ohio's recent history including the cases of several persons in the infamous murder of Don Mellett, Canton newspaperman, recalled several instances in which good acts toward boys have aided them. One, he recalled, occurred when he was serving in the senate. One of 10 pages was admonished by another senator for some breach in his duties and the boy appeared quite disgusted when Judge Clevenger spoke to him and urged him to forget and to promise to make himself a useful man. Years later, Judge Clevenger said, he was riding through the west when a young man walked up to him and asked if her was not Judge Clevenger. The judge replied in the affirmative and was informed that the man and the boy he had aided were one and the same person. That man is now the father of two children and holding a job drawing a salary of $50,000 yearly.

SCOUTS READY TO COLLECT CLOTHING

Youths To Assemble at 8 A. M. Saturday at Chamber of Commerce Rooms.

Co-operation of residents of the city who have any clothing ready to be discarded or any household articles not being used is asked by the Circleville Benevolent association which will conduct a fine-comb tour of Boy Scouts over the city Saturday morning in an effort to obtain clothing and other items for the needy of the city.

Boy Scouts are asked to report at the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 8 a. m. Saturday for final instruction. If goods are placed on front porches the scouts will have a chance to save time, it was pointed out today.

A word of praise for the boys who are helping in this work would not be a bit out of order.

Mrs. C. G. Leist and Miss Nell Weldon and other members of their committee will receive the goods at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Next week Mrs. J. R. Noecker, Mrs. Ross Kirkpatrick, Miss Mae Hudnell, Mrs. C. E. Moeller, Mrs. C. B. Stoffer and Mrs. Charles Hall, committee women from their churches, will meet to mend the articles received.

Any goods which is usable is sought by the association for distribution.

GREAT BRITAIN TO PAY DEBTS

France Put In Hazardous Position With Herriot Expected To Lose Job.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—Forcing Premier Edouard Herriot into a crisis before the Chamber of Deputies, Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald informed him today that Great Britain will make the war debt payment due to the United States on Dec. 15.

Herriot had hoped to play a waiting game but MacDonald forced his hand in the course of a lengthy conference by telling him Great Britain would not default on her $95,550,000 principle and interest installment—one week from today.

The French premier regarded the British stand as one of complete fairness so far as France itself is concerned but it placed him personally in an extremely hazardous position. The chamber of deputies has left little doubt that it is almost unanimously in favor of defaulting Dec. 15 payment.

MacDonald's action left Herriot no choice but to go before the Chamber and request that body to approve his course in making the payment. Unless an unexpected and 11th hour change of heart is recorded in the Chamber overthrow of the Herriot government appeared inevitable.

'DADS' READY TO REDUCE LIGHTS

Map Showing Where Light Power Would Be Cut Is Ready For Action.

City council is ready to present a plan to the Southern Ohio Electric Co., calling for the reduction of power in a number of the city street lights. A map showing where the reduction would be made was ready for study Wednesday evening but because of the lengthy sewage plant bond issue controversy the plan was not studied.

Mack Parrett Jr., is chairman of the committee on reduction of power in the lights and is ready to present the plan at the next meeting of council on Dec. 21, the next regular meeting.

The light power reduction is a part of the economy plan of the council. It is planned not to eliminate any lights because of the dangers in that but in a number the candle power is though superfluous.

CAVE CHANCES DIMMER WHILE 2 QUIT FIGHT

Observers Believe Freer Bittering Will Be Named As Speaker

WHITE IS BOLTED

Withdrawing Men to Aid Ashlander

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8.—Chances of Representative J. Freer Bittering, of Ashland, in his fight for speakership of the next Ohio House of Representatives suddenly boomed here this afternoon when both Representatives W. T. Roberts of Belmont-co and E. C. Eikenberry of Prebel-co announced their withdrawal from the race.

Both Roberts and Eikenberry said they would throw their support to Rep. Bittering for the prize post.

10 OR 15 VOTES
Political observers estimated that Roberts and Eikenberry would bring from 10 to 15 votes to the Bittering fold.

Announcing his withdrawal from the speakership race, Rep. Roberts served notice that he would be a candidate for Democratic floor leader opposing Rep. Keith Lawrence, of Cleveland, the administration's candidate.

Rep. Eikenberry said he would not be a candidate for any post.

Withdrawal of Roberts and Eikenberry from the speakership race was regarded as a severe setback to the administration which had announced the support of Rep. Frank Cave of Mansfield for the post.

Six senators stood out openly against the administration yesterday in the Democratic caucus and brought on a bitter tangle over the proposal of leaders that they make a clean sweep of the senate patronage.

CLERK CONTESTED

The position of Senate Clerk Thomas E. Bateman, Republican, and the posts of his two aides, are the plums. Although Democratic chieftains want all three for the organization, six Democratic senators said "No" yesterday, and threatened to support Bateman, or bolt the caucus entirely, if the issue is pressed.

Bittering's supporters, rallying for the house caucus today, boasted that they have enough votes to defeat Cave. Against them, however, is the powerful opposition of Democratic State Chairman Henry G. Brunner, along with the governors endorsement.

So many disputes arose in the senate Democratic caucus that the only conclusive action taken was in the election of Senator David H. DeArmond of Hamilton as leader of the majority, and even that was a formality and had long been conceded. Republicans elected Senator Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville as the minority leader. Another Democratic caucus may be necessary to attempt peace before the assembly convenes early in January.

As another means of increasing the competition among athletes, the association adopted a plan for forming a pool of 5 cents taken from each admission, the fund to be split among the first five clubs on a percentage basis, with rewards for the teams finishing highest.

This also was expected to receive support of the International League today.

'HUNK' CONFIDENT

Anderson Says Team Must Play As It Did Against Army To Win.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 8.—"If my gang plays like it did against Army we may win the game."

"Otherwise," continued Coach "Hunk" Anderson of Notre Dame, "we'll be lucky to hold the Trojans to three touchdowns."

But Notre Dame's "invaluable crimples" showed remarkable spirit as they dashed through a fast practice session on the University of Arizona gridiron in preparation for the game against University of Southern California Saturday at Los Angeles.

BRANCHEAU READY

Ray Brancheau, halfback, who walked falteringly to an ambulance when the train arrived yesterday, looked most healthy and capable as he shot dazzling forward passes.

After two drills today the Notre Dame team will depart early tomorrow to arrive in Los Angeles at dusk for a full night's rest on the eve of the intersection clash to be attended by 105,000 persons.

Banas, Greeney, Malinkovich, Koken, Lukas, Tobin, Jaskwich, Murphy and Vejar were among the Notre Dame players who participated in fulltime workouts. The southwest climate has petrified—perhaps killed—the worst of the "flu" germs.

PANTHERS PREPARE FOR LONG JOURNEY

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 8.—With ten days of practice scheduled enroute, Pitt's Panthers will leave here Dec. 18 on their long Pacific coast jaunt to the Rose Bowl game with Southern California, the official itinerary revealed today.

Dallas and Tucson, Ariz., will be stop-over points along the route. A one-day stand will be made at Dallas and a nine-day pre-game camp will be established at Tucson before the east's representatives in the traditional New Year's day battle move into Pasadena on Dec. 31.

At least one practice session will be staged in the Rose Bowl before the whistle blows Jan. 2. A 15-minute stop-over to change trains will be made in St. Louis Dec. 19.

DUTRA IN LEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 8.—Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Cal., professional golfing champion, today held medal honors for the first 18-hole qualifying round of the national open golf tournament. He scored a subpar 50.

Trailing Dutra by two strokes were Jimmy Thompson Colorado Springs, and Charles Sheppard, Oakland.

With 73 strokes the following qualified: Leo Diegel, Al Espinosa, Ben Contrin, Paul Runyan, Mike Demassy, Romie Espinosa and Russell Conroy.

The 64 professional and amateur qualifiers also included John DeForest, British amateur champion, and Robert Sweney, also of London, together with many noted American golfers including Horton Smith, Joe Frank, Archie Harnback, Roland MacKenzie, Al Collins and Mike Mura.

New King and Queen of Health Ambitious to Fight Sickness

Almost Perfect Health Champions at 4-H Congress Plan Careers as Doctor and Nurse. "Eat What You Like," Their Motto.

The healthiest boy and girl in the United States, chosen from among 950,000 entrants from all over the country at the 4-H Congress in Chicago, will devote their lives to the alleviation of human suffering. The boy, Ross Awen, of Harrison County, W. Va., will be a doctor, and Dorothy Eiler, of Atkin County, Minn., the healthiest girl, plans a nursing career. Ross is twenty, as handsome as he is healthy. He is a great believer in the early to bed idea and is also an advocate of eating just what you like. He scored 99.4 points out of a possible 100, a perfect score having been marred by the fact that one of his teeth overlapped another. Dorothy, sixteen, is 5 feet 3 1/2 inches tall, weighs 125 pounds and is a brunette with sparkling brown eyes. She, too, is a disciple of the early to bed maxim and the eat-what-you-please principle. Dorothy has never been ill in her life, except at the age of three when she had the measles—who ever heard of one measles? She is a modern girl in every respect, save one. She uses powder and lipstick, goes to dances and parties and has a good time. The one exception is that she does not spend any time watching the scale, dieting being a cardinal sin in her eyes.

dict late yesterday afternoon in supreme court here, as outlined by a number of the jury to International News Service.

"We felt Homewood was not telling the truth about his attitude toward Miss Gibson, when he said he never spoke an endearing word to her," this juror explained. "We had listened to the girl for two days. She impressed us as a lady, as something of a romantic lady. We felt certain she would not have given herself to a man who never even mentioned the word love."

"When Homewood said, he did not tell her he loved her, we thought he lied."

"And if he lied about that one thing, he might have been lying about everything."

The jury took but 45 minutes to return a verdict of guilty, which sent Homewood into the prison behind the courtroom here, the most surprised man in the building. He had been so sure of acquittal he did not bring any clothes with him to court, nor make any arrangements to drive his car back to Park Ridge, N. J., where he lives with his mother.

'HUNK' CONFIDENT

Anderson Says Team Must Play As It Did Against Army To Win.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 8.—"If my gang plays like it did against Army we may win the game."

"Otherwise," continued Coach "Hunk" Anderson of Notre Dame, "we'll be lucky to hold the Trojans to three touchdowns."

But Notre Dame's "invalids and cripples" showed remarkable spirit as they dashed through a fast practice session on the University of Arizona gridiron in preparation for the game against University of Southern California Saturday at Los Angeles.

New King and Queen of Health Ambitious to Fight Sickness

Almost Perfect Health Champions at 4-H Congress Plan Careers as Doctor and Nurse. "Eat What You Like," Their Motto.

THEY'RE AT HOME IN THE KITCHEN

DOROTHY EILER ROSS ALLEN

The healthiest boy and girl in the United States, chosen from among 950,000 entrants from all over the country at the 4-H Congress in Chicago, will devote their lives to the alleviation of human suffering. The boy, Ross Allen, of Harrison County, W. Va., will be a doctor, and Dorothy Eiler, of Atkin County, Minn., the healthiest girl, plans a nursing career. Ross is twenty, as handsome as he is healthy. He is a great believer in the early to bed idea and is also an advocate of eating just what you like. He scored 99.4 points out of a possible 100, a perfect score having been awarded by the fact that one of his teeth overlapped another. Dorothy, sixteen, is 5 feet 3 1/2 inches tall, weighs 126 pounds and is a brunette with sparkling brown eyes. She, too, is a disciple of the early to bed maxim and the eat-what-you-like principle. Dorothy has never been ill in her life, except at the age of three when she had the measles—what ever heard of one measles? She is a modern girl in every respect, save one. She uses powder and lipstick, goes to dances every night and has a good time. The one exception is that she does not spend any time watching the scale, dieting being a cardinal sin in her eyes.

dict late yesterday afternoon in supreme court here, as outlined by a member of the jury to International News Service.

"We felt Homewood was not telling the truth about his attitude toward Miss Gibson, when he said he never spoke an endearing word to her," this juror explained. "We had listened to the girl for two days. She impressed us as a lady, as something of a romantic lady. We felt certain she would not have given herself to a man who never even mentioned the word love."

"When Homewood said, he did not tell her he loved her, we thought he lied."

"And if he lied about that one thing, he might have been lying about everything."

The jury took but 45 minutes to return a verdict of guilty, which sent Homewood into the prison behind the courtroom here, the most surprised man in the building. He had been so sure of acquittal he did not bring any clothes with him to court, nor make any arrangements to drive his car back to Park Ridge, N. J., where he lives with his mother.

THE SEWAGE PLANT

operation and maintenance was stressed.

The doctor continued: "Chillicothe is not going to clean its part of the river until Columbus does and when Columbus cleans her own skirts that will be time enough for us."

READS COMMUNICATION

Scott Eagleson then addressed the chair and read communications between himself and Dr. Southern in which the state health officer said the city had not been ordered to clean up the river and that no order had ever been sent here instructing the city to discontinue dumping its untreated sewage into the stream. Several other questions were answered by Dr. Southern to Eagleson's letter. "The expense of retreating these sewage bonds would precede all other expense of the city including fire and police departments," Eagleson said.

Councilman Barnes called upon Former Councilman W. Frank Baker who was a member of city council at the time the "gentleman's agreement" was entered into.

Mr. Baker recalled instructions from the state board of health several years ago that the sewage system of the city would not be approved until an adequate disposal plant was built. This plant would cost between $350,000 and $400,000, he said an engineer instructed him. "The Calcar Corporation then came along," Mr. Baker said, "and offered to build a plant on the river. Council agreed to accept the plant at a price not to exceed $100,000 at the approval of the state board of health. I can readily see where the difference between the offer of $100,000 and $23,000 lies, improvements have been ordered, extra money is needed to cover those. For instance a new pump is needed on N. Court-st."

TERMS IT DUTY

"I think it is a duty that council owes the Calcar products people for their promise. The plant does not have to be operated but it is the council's duty to pay the men who built the plant. This project has been termed unnecessary but I can refer to a number of other expenditures which are also unnecessary, the hospital being one of them. Several years ago the city was bonded for $30,000 to induce factories to come here; the money is gone but where are the factories? Columbus is now wrangling over its sewage plant and the officials of that city know they have to do something. If we wait to purchase a sewage plant it may cost plenty in time."

H. M. Crites, S. Court-st, was next given the floor and remarked that he was a member of council when the sewage disposal question first came up. "If there has been a gentleman's agreement between council and the Calcar people then go ahead and pay what the agreement calls for. We ask justice," Mr. Crites declared that north end sewage had been dumped on his land for 10 years and he has never received a cent for it. "I would like to know what the exact cost of this plant would be; where are your profiles and where are your figures?"

ARGUMENT HALTED

These questions brought a heated argument between Councilman Barnes and Mr. Crites which was quickly halted by President Goeller. Barnes contended that the city does have cost records of the plant.

Lee T. Shaner, E. Union-st, former councilman, followed Mr. Crites by saying "It is not our purpose to tell council what to do. We would like to say what we would like council to do. If the council or the city owes the Calcar corporation then pay it, but do not pay the remainder of the $23,000 at this time. At the rate we are going in three years 90 per cent of the persons in Pickaway-co will be bankrupt. It is up to you to see that we don't have any more taxes to pay."

James I. Smith, S. Court-st, canner, took the floor to state: "Now is not an opportune time to spend money. We know what is going on as far as finance is concerned. Our taxes are sufficient and I think now is the worst possible time to spend money. I believe this council is capable of passing on this issue and I ask you to do the best you can. Would it be possible to collect a fund to purchase the plant? Columbus may be from five to 10 years in building the necessary disposal plant and at the rate now being shown it may never be done," he concluded.

Guy Culp, N. Court-st property owner asked: "Haven't we had enough pumping sewage up hill into the north end of the city? Surely our property on the N. Court-st hill is worth as much as the Calcar plant. Rents are coming down and who is expected to take care of the extra rents which would result from a sewage plant? One question I would like to ask is why this question could not come to the vote of the people of the city, I, for one would like to know where the money will go after council obtains it."

David Courtright remarked: "A gentleman's agreement has been spoken of but nothing in writing has ever been found to prove this."

J. R. NOECKER HEARD

J. R. Noecker, banker and member of the Calcar corporation, then took the floor and read some information printed in a pamphlet published by the state board of health concerning the plant. He pointed out that the plant will handle the city's disposal four times over. Mr. Noecker continued to read from the pamphlet and quoted figures telling of the magnitude of pollution just south of Circleville. "I am a member of the Calcar corporation," Mr. Noecker declared, "and I have the interests of Circleville at heart. The gentleman's agreement was made in the winter of 1929 and 1930. All I know about it is hearsay because I did not attend any meetings where the matter was discussed with council."

"We operated the plant in the summer of 1930 and tried to get members of the state board of health down here to study it. When Mr. Waring appeared at a Chamber of Commerce meeting and was asked to view the plant he said "I am not interested." I have seen a good deal in the paper, signed by three names and nearly all the things asserted are not true. In the improvements as ordered by the state board sludge beds would be built. Farmers would be glad to obtain this sludge as fertilizer. A dry feed mixture which would be inexpensive would be used in the operation of the plant and would be a big saving in cost. We will be able to obtain any amount of land needed for the sludge beds from the Container Corporation for $100 per acre. The straw board does not expect the plant to handle its sewage but has already asked questions concerning the handling of its refuse. The plant has never been worked to its full capacity. While they were here the men from the state board of health thought enough of the cleanliness of the water after being treated to wash their hands in it. This is the only plant in Ohio where they would do this. Another sewage plant would cost the city $300,000."

ANSWERS INSINUATION

E. S. Neuding, councilman-at-large, took the floor and remarked that he has heard a number of insinuations concerning certain transactions in the sewage matter and asked if any one in the gallery could enlighten him. Guy Culp replied that he heard that Mr. Neuding had owned $500 stock in the Calcar corporation but had transferred it to Mrs. Neuding's name. The councilman denied that he ever owned stock in the corporation and said that as far as he knew Mrs. Neuding had either $100 or $200 invested in the company.

Dr. Howard Jones again spoke and said that the meeting was not for the purpose of arguing the merits of the Calcar corporation's plant and that if the council is obligated to the Calcar people then they should be paid.

W. E. Crist, N. Court-st, merchant, was permitted to speak by President Goeller and declared "I think this sewage problem is one of the most important we have before us. Council is trying to buy something we do not need. Why clear up the Scioto river before Columbus does? Why not wait until that time? Why unburden the men in the Calcar corporation for their losses, others of us have lost money but have not been repaid. The promise to buy the plant does not amount to anything and I would like to see a vote tonight and see every councilman vote against the question."

STATE SPENT $5,000

Scott Eagleson resumed his talk to contradict statements of Mr. Noecker that letters printed in the newspaper were untrue. He stated that Mr. Noecker said the facts were untrue but that he did not cite anyone in particular that was. Eagleson read some more figures from the report of the board of health and said "The state spent nearly $5,000 in studying this project and preparing this report so they must have been somewhat interested." Eagleson quoted reports of various days that sewage could not be handled and Earl Kibler, E. Main-st, member of the Calcar corporation, who was in charge of the plant during its inspection, said that on these days the inspectors ordered the sewage not used.

J. I. Smith was again recognized and said "The real reason back of these protests is that we do not need the sewage disposal plant at this time" and his statement was greeted by a chorus of "Nos" from the gallery.

Ward Robinson, S. Pickaway-st, dairyman, next came to the assistance of the Calcar group saying that results obtained from the Ashland sewage plant which is operated under the same system as this one are remarkable and more than satisfactory. "The right manager would make a money-making proposition out of sewage plant and not a liability. Are we going to wait until kicked and forced to clear the river here or are we going to act right now?" Mr. Robinson delved into several technical points concerning sewage disposal and engaged in a technical argument over merits of sewage plants with H. Scott Eagleson which was stopped by President Goeller who stated "There is too much textbook testimony being introduced here."

James I. Smith then urged "Put the question to the vote of the people."

WILL MAKES STATEMENT

At this time Councilman Will, who has voted against the project, took the floor. He started by remarking he was reluctant to speak but is forced to defend himself since a violation of the gentleman's agreement has been changed.

"I regard all the members of the Calcar corporation highly," Mr. Will commenced. "I will go back to the start when Mr. J. T. Travers appeared here with his plans for a sewage plant. The plan was to build a sewage plant which when completed and fully approved by the state board of health would be purchased by the city at the cost of the erection of the plant not to exceed $110,000. Members of the council were approached both in meeting and personally by members of the corporation in an open and honest manner. The proposition as put to us was that if council did not want to build the plant upon its completion the Calcar people would operate the plant for the city at a cost of so much money per gallon. The agreement is not in the records of council, however."

"Members of the Calcar corporation were under the impression that the sludge obtained from the plant had a high value of fertilizer."

Ross Kidnaping Case Revived By Death of Bowery Derelict

Sketch of CHARLEY ROSS

WITH FOSTER FATHER

Was William Bramson, who died last March on Welfare Island, New York, the Charley Ross whose kidnaping in 1874 caused a world-wide furor? Or was he just another of the many who have claimed that role in the 58 years that have elapsed since the child was stolen from before his home in Germantown, Pa.? That is the question to which New York authorities are endeavoring to find the answer, following the revelations of Mrs. Emma Kleinhertz, of Catskill, N. Y., that she had proof that Bramson was really Charley Ross. Mrs. Kleinhertz produced photos and letters taken from an old trunk of Bramson's which he had left at her house when he was courting her daughter. Some of the pictures, showing Bramson as a child, bear a striking resemblance to the photo of young Ross which was widely circulated when he was stolen. An investigation of Bramson's effects disclosed a note which said that his will was in the custody of A. L. Drummond of New York, a former U. S. Secret Service man. But Drummond avers that although he drew up the will he never retained a copy. Bramson, he said, had taken the document away with him. Mrs. Kleinhertz recalls that Bramson first came to Catskill with Vincent and Elizabeth Bramson, supposedly his parents, at about the time of the Ross kidnaping. They ran a hotel for many years and left all their money to the boy when they died. The only real clue that has ever turned up regarding the missing boy was a few months after he had been stolen, when two burglars were fatally shot in Brooklyn. One of them, Joe Douglas, before he died stated that he was one of the men who had kidnaped the child. But he was unable to say how Charley was disposed of.

One member since that time has admitted to me that the sludge had but little value. After a time the board of health came, down here to inspect the plant and approved it under conditions that certain improvements be made.

ADVOCATED VOTE

"Council was to employ a competent sanitary engineer to survey the plant and I asked council to abide by this request. I still believe this should be done. I was willing to spend money for a competent engineer but could not get it done. I suggested the matter be placed to a vote of the people but this was refused. I have heard indirectly what some sewage plants cost and this figure runs about $135,000 for the best, I have been told."

"It is agreed, I believe, that the present plant is not desirable and for that reason the gentleman's agreement, in my mind, ceases to exist. I believe the members of the corporation are sincere in offering the plant but the question now is not a gentleman's agreement but 'Do we need the plant?'"

"This council cannot afford to spend a needless dollar. The issuance of bonds would mean an increase of about 25 cents on each $1,000 of valuation." Mr. Will's talk was greeted with applause from the crowd. Mr. Neuding then was recognized and said he didn't intend to make a speech but that a lot of insinuations had been made and a lot of character involved in the question that he thought was not justified. "A chart shown us by the state board of health several years ago discloses that the Scioto river as it nears Circleville begins to clear up but when it reaches here it again becomes in bad condition from the sewage dumped into it," Mr. Neuding said. "A previous survey was made of a possible sewage disposal plant and its cost would have been $200,000 we were told. I believe this plant would save the city money."

Councilman Barnes was then heard and said that Circleville has the best layout for a sewage plant of any city he has ever been in. "I believe the city would save money by buying this plant."

L. C. HAMMILL SPEAKS

L. C. Hammill, Watt-st, stated "I believe all of us have learned a whole lot through the discussion and I do not believe the city owes the Calcar corporation a single thing. They have not lived up to their agreement and the plant has not been accepted without reservation. We are here tonight to show council that we are against the issuance of bonds for a sewage disposal plant."

Mr. Hammill's remarks were the last of the evening previous to the motion of Mr. Marion to continue the study of the project.

That the meeting was a difficult one for all concerned is certain and President Goeller deserves commendation for the manner in which he conducted the protest hearing.

THE SEWAGE PLANT

operation and maintenance was stressed.

The doctor continued: "Chillicothe is not going to clean its part of the river until Columbus does add when Columbus cleans her own skirts that will be time enough for us."

READS COMMUNICATION

Scott Eagleson then addressed the chair and read communications between himself and Dr. Southard in which the state health officer said the city had not been ordered to clean up the river and that no order had ever been sent here instructing the city to discontinue dumping its untreated sewage into the stream. Several other questions were answered by Dr. Southard to Eagleson's letter. "The expense of retiring these sewage bonds would precede all other expense of the city including fire and police departments," Eagleson said.

Councilman Barnes called upon Former Councilman W. Frank Baker who was a member of city council at the time the "gentleman's agreement" was entered into. Mr. Baker recalled instructions from the state board of health several years ago that the sewage system of the city would not be approved until an adequate disposal plant was built. This plant would cost between $350,000 and $400,000, he said an engineer instructed him. "The Calcar Corporation then came along," Mr. Baker said, "and offered to build a plant on the river. Council agreed to accept the plant at a price not to exceed $10,000 at the approval of the state board of health. I can readily see where the difference between the offer of $10,000 and $23,000 lies, improvements have been ordered and extra money is needed to cover those. For instance a new pump is needed on N. Court-st."

TERMS IT DUTY

"I think it is a duty that council owes the Calcar products people for their promise. The plant does not have to be operated but it is the council's duty to pay the men who built the plant. This project has been termed unnecessary but I can refer to a number of other expenditures which are also unnecessary, the hospital being one of them. Several years ago the city was bonded for $50,000 to induce factories to come here; the money is gone but where are the factories? Columbus is now wrangling over its sewage plant and the officials of that city know they have to do something. If we wait to purchase a sewage plant it may cost plenty in time."

H. M. Crites, S. Court-st., was next given the floor and remarked that he was a member of council when the sewage disposal question first came up. "If there has been a gentleman's agreement between council and the Calcar people then go ahead and pay what the agreement calls for. We ask justice," Mr. Crites declared that north end sewage had been dumped on his land for 10 years and he has never received a cent for it. "I would like to know what the exact cost of this plant would be; where are

ARGUMENT HALTED

These questions brought a heated argument between Councilman Barnes and Mr. Crites which was quickly halted by President Goeller. Barnes contended that the city does have cost records of the plant.

Lee T. Shaner, E. Union-st., former councilman, followed Mr. Crites by saying "It is not our purpose to tell council what to do. We would like to say what we would like council to do. If the council or the city owes the Calcar corporation then pay it but do not pay the remainder of the $23,000 at this time. At the rate we are going in three years 90 per cent of the persons in Pickaway-co will be bankrupt. It is up to you to see that we don't have any more taxes to pay."

James I. Smith, S. Court-st., canner, took the floor to state: "Now is not an opportune time to spend money. We know what is going on as far as finance is concerned. Our taxes are sufficient and I think now is the worst possible time to spend money. I believe this council is capable of passing on this issue and I ask you to do the best you can. Would it be possible to collect a fund to purchase the plant? Columbus may be from five to 10 years in building the necessary disposal plant and at the rate now being shown it may never be done," he concluded.

Guy Culp, N. Court-st. property owner asked: "Haven't we had enough pumping sewage up hill into the north end of the city? Surely our property on the N. Court-st. hill is worth as much as the Calcar plant. Rents are coming down and who is expected to take care of the extra rents which would result from a sewage plant? One question I would like to ask is why this question could not come to the vote of the people of the city. I for one would like to know where the money will go after council obtains it."

David Courtwright remarked: "A gentleman's agreement has been spoken of but nothing in writing has ever been found to prove this."

J. R. NOECKER HEARD

J. R. Noecker, banker and member of the Calcar corporation, then took the floor, and read some information printed in the pamphlet published by the state board of health concerning the plant. He pointed out that the plant will handle the city's disposal four times over. Mr. Noecker continued to read from the pamphlet and quoted figures telling of the magnitude of pollution just south of Circleville. "I am a member of the Calcar corporation," Mr. Noecker declared, "and I have the interests of Circleville at heart. The gentleman's agreement was made in the winter of 1929 and 1930. All I know about it is hearsay because I did not attend any meetings where the matter was discussed with council."

"We operated the plant in the summer of 1930 and tried to get members of the state board of health down here to study it. When Mr. Waring appeared at a Chamber of Commerce meeting and was asked to view the plant he said 'I am not interested.' I have seen a good deal in the paper, signed by three names and nearly all the things asserted are not true. In the improvements as ordered by the state board sludge beds would be built. Farmers would be glad to obtain this sludge as fertilizer. A dry feed mixture which would be inexpensive would be used in the operation of the plant and would be a big saving in cost. We will be able to obtain any amount of land needed for the sludge beds from the Container Corporation for $100 per acre. The straw board does not expect the plant to handle its sewage but has already asked questions concerning the handling of its refuse. The plant has never been worked to its full capacity. While they were here the men from the state board of health thought enough of the cleanliness of the water after being treated to wash their hands in it. This is the only plant in Ohio where they would do this. Another sewage plant would cost the city $300,000."

ANSWERS INSINUATION

E. S. Neuding, councilman-at-large, took the floor and remarked that he has heard a number of insinuations concerning certain transactions in the sewage matter and asked if any one in the gallery could enlighten him. Guy Culp replied that he heard that Mr. Neuding had owned $500 stock in the Calcar corporation but had transferred it to Mrs. Neuding's name. The councilman denied that he ever owned stock in the company and said that as far as he knew Mrs. Neuding had either $100 or $200 invested in the company.

Dr. Howard Jones again spoke and said that the meeting was not for the purpose of arguing the merits of the Calcar corporation's plant and that if the council is obligated to the Calcar people then he will be paid.

W. E. Crist, N. Court-st., merchant, was permitted to speak by President Goeller and declared "I think this sewage problem is one of the most important we have before us. Council is trying to buy something we do not need. Why clear up the Scioto river before Columbus does? Why not wait until that time? Why imburs the men in the Calcar corporation for their losses, others of us have lost money but have not been repaid. The promise to buy the plant does not amount to anything and I would like to see a vote tonight and see every councilman vote against the question."

STATE SPENT $5,000

Scott Eagleson resumed his talk to contradict statements of Mr. Noecker that letters printed in the newspaper were untrue. He stated that Mr. Noecker said the facts were untrue but that he did not cite anyone in particular that was. Eagleson read some more figures from the report of the board of health and said "The state spent nearly $5,000 in studying this project and preparing this report so they must have been somewhat interested." Eagleson quoted reports of various days that sewage could not be handled and Earl Kibler, E. Main-st., member of the Calcar corporation, who was in charge of the plant during its inspection, said that on these days the inspectors ordered the sewage not used.

J. I. Smith was again recognized and said "The real reason back of these protests is that we do not need the sewage disposal plant at this time" and his statement was greeted by a chorus of "Nos" from the gallery.

Ward Robinson, S. Pickaway-st., dairyman, next came to the assistance of the Calcar group saying that results obtained from the Ashland sewage plant which is operated under the same system as this one are remarkable and more than satisfactory. "The right manager would make a money-making proposition out of sewage plant and not a liability. Are we going to wait until kicked and forced to clear the river here or are we going to act right now?" Mr. Robinson delved into several technical points concerning sewage disposal and engaged in a technical argument over merits of sewage plants with H. Scott Eagleson which was stopped by President Goeller who stated "There is too much textbook testimony being introduced here."

James I. Smith then urged "Put the question to the vote of the people."

WILL MAKES STATEMENT

At this time Councilman Will, who has voted against the project, took the floor. He started by remarking he was reluctant to speak but is forced to defend himself since a violation of the 'gentleman's agreement' has been changed.

"I regard all the members of the Calcar corporation highly," Mr. Will commenced. "I will go back to the start when Mr. J. T. Travers appeared here with his plans for a sewage plant. The plan was to build a sewage plant which when completed and fully approved by the state board of health would be purchased by the city at the cost of the erection of the plant not to exceed $11,000. Members of the council were approached both in meeting and personally by members of the corporation in an open and honest manner. The proposition as put to us was that if council did not want to buy the plant upon its completion the Calcar people would operate the plant for the city at a cost of so much money per gallon. The agreement is not in the records of council, however."

"Members of the Calcar corporation were under the impression that the sludge obtained from the plant had a high value of fertilizer."

Too Much Fatalism

THERE is one school of economic thought which refuses to excuse the economists, the government and the capitalistic system for the depression. It is a fatalistic adit that the depression is a phase of a cycle beyond man's control. This school may be wrong, but at least it has not surrendered and dares to give battle to the inevitable, if this sickening dip in the economic curve is inevitable.

"Ox-age thinking" is blamed for "this futile and foolish depression" by Edward A. Filene, merchant and economist, and persons willing to admit the facts, though they take the wind out of the sails of the "great" captains of industry, financiers, statesmen and economists, agree with him.

The logic by which he arrives at his conclusion is as follows:

"We know how to produce goods. We have engineers able to direct the necessary work, and we have millions of workers willing and more than willing to do the work required. Moreover, the work would not cost us anything, because it would be wealth-producing work and would pay for itself, whereas the present idleness of these potential workers and directors is costing us so much that the burden seems almost unbearable.

"In spite of all this, we put up with the idleness and poverty and staggering waste of human life, because, while we have the automobile, we haven't done any extensive automobile-age thinking yet."

He contends that the depression would have been prevented had there been coordination between production and distribution and a little more application of engineering knowledge.

Smoking less may rest your nerves, but it doesn't work in the case of factory chimneys.

A Market for Apples

THAT the United States and its products are more than a little dependent on foreign markets has just been demonstrated by the reopening of the Argentine to American apples.

For several years the apple industry, the principal source of income for several large sections in a number of states, has felt the full force of the depression and tariff war. Deprived of both foreign and domestic market, the apple growers and packers fell upon dark days. Thousands of bushels of apples have been virtually given away, or thrown to the bogs, during the last three years, and even that has not prevented a post-season surplus.

Through the lifting of the ban on apple imports in the Argentine, American fruit men expect to dispose of thousands of carloads of surplus this year at profitable prices. For them this change of government policy in South America promises good times again.

It is well enough for America to strive after complete economic independence, but until it has attained that end it cannot afford to miss a single opportunity to create or find new foreign markets. It is a good time for dragging buyers from the sidewalks.

How smart Americans are! They know that publicity makes anything important, so they give the depression a lot of it.

RADIO FUNDS USE FOR COTTON PAPER

DALLAS, Texas—A new market for southern cotton will be found should the prediction of W. E. Talbot, managing director of the Southwest Industrial Development Bureau, be realized.

Several radio stations over the country have requested information concerning a newly made cotton paper which, unlike ordinary paper, will not "rattle" when folded or handled. In the opinion of radio announcers who have written to Talbot, the new type paper will go a long way toward eliminating noise in broadcasting studios.

The cracking of ordinary paper is amplified thousands of times when it creeps into the microphone, and radio performers have expressed the hope the new "sound-proof" paper will correct their difficulty.

According to manufacturers interested in the paper here, one bale of cotton will make about 80,000 sheets of paper.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

They had been waiting but a few minutes in the small elegant hotel when the elevator door opened and a woman, a little short, a little square, but softly rounded, dressed from head to foot in sand, stepped out. She came forward smiling. She shook hands with Jimmie; then turned in her sweet serene way to Patricia.

"I used to watch you always rushing about at Palm Beach. I don't suppose you remember me."

"I do very well," said Patricia. "Yours is one of the last faces I saw as our train pulled out. You were standing beside Jack Lawrence, and the contrast between his battered face and yours sent me away laughing."

They sat down smilingly. But it was of Paris and not Palm Beach that they talked.

They discussed the inevitable subjects—clothes and the shops. Mrs. Brownley said she hadn't bought much. She wasn't really crazy about clothes, which was a good thing as her means were limited. Patricia admitted that she adored beautiful clothes; but couldn't afford them, and didn't fret about it. Her eyes rested in unconscious appraisal on Mrs. Brownley's very simple but very elegant apparel.

The woman noted her glance and smiled: "I don't care for many things, or elaborate clothes, but I always manage to have one stunning outfit. It is stunning, don't you think?"

She was so charmingly frank, almost childlike in her gentle eagerness for approval.

Yes, thought Patricia, I can see. . . . She is charming. . . . and all woman. . . . Not a common find in these days of masculinely assured women and boyish girls.

They chatted so pleasantly, so inconspicuously. Warren alone showed embarrassment. The color came and went in his fair face. He crossed his legs and uncrossed them, shifted restlessly in his corner of the settee and Patricia occupied. He grinned at the feminine things about which they talked. Grinned rather stupidly.

When they were discussing the laces shown on spring frocks, he came to his feet as if jerked upright, and said quite violently: "I'm catching a train at ten-thirty. Goodbye, girls. Maybe I'll get back before I sail. I'll let you know."

He didn't offer to shake hands. They stared at each other as he went through the lobby and out the door. Then they looked at each other. . . . feminine posturing stripped from them—a rag reaching from them and pinned to the man—dragged ruthlessly from them as he went out. They sat stark asked, before each other.

Mrs. Brownley made a feeble effort. "What do you suppose was the matter with him? Do you really think he had to catch a train and had forgotten it? Or was he just bored by our talk of clothes?"

"No," said Patricia grimly. "He'd got himself and us in an embarrassing situation, and he couldn't stand the gaff. That's all."

Mrs. Brownley's eyes fell before the level gaze of the girl. There was a moment of silence. Then Mrs. Brownley suggested that they go for a stroll.

As they went out Patricia wondered: What will we talk about? It would be silly to pretend now. . . . Oh, what a beastly thing for Jimmie to do. . . .

The Cafe de Paris being at hand, they went in. It was full of Americans. They found a table by a window in a far corner. But they had nothing to talk about.

"How could he be so cruel?" said Mrs. Brownley after the waiter had brought their order. "And yet, he's the kindest man I ever knew."

"He didn't mean to be cruel," Patricia said dryly. "He simply didn't think. He has made a real success in a thinking business, yet he has made a mess of his life by not thinking when thought was needed."

Directly Mrs. Brownley's soft hazel eyes lifted. "Do you—hate me—Patricia?"

"No, oddly I don't. I rather like you."

"I'm glad. I like you, too." After another silence she said: "May I come and see you? I don't know anyone in Paris—You're so sensible—and I—"

"Of course," Patricia gave her address and phone number. "And now I must go. Come and see me whenever you like."

"I'll go too. I'll phone you tomorrow, if I may."

"Yes. Do." Anything to get out.

Patricia was not surprised when Jack failed to call her the following morning.

"Oh, I've treated him abominably. I had no business to meet Jimmie after I'd promised Jack." She called his hotel and was told he had checked out. No, he hadn't left a forwarding address.

Feeling sick beyond words, she went to her easel and began painting out the pretty girl she had started. She covered the canvas with burning blue across the top, drawing it down to meet a waste of yellow sand that stretched away and away to infinity.

Her father watched her in surprise. She was not studying landscape painting. Often she painted an inconsequential scene into a pretty girl picture; but he had never seen her attempt anything of this sort.

She worked on and on, never speaking, laying in light and heat and aridity with amazing skill, until the feeling of it began to grip him. And all at once he knew that she was transferring, not imagination to the canvas, but emotion. Emotion so tremendous that the technique was unconscious. A thousand details were filled in where yet not one object lived, details of blown sand, tiny depressions and uprisings that made the scene more and more barren and hopeless. Presently, she painted in a single tall cactus withered and black. Then a tiny impressionistic figure, whether man or woman, he could not tell. Yet the figure was alive, deep in sand, toiling toward the distant and wretched cactus.

"I wonder what for," he thought. "All at once she stopped. Looked at it a long time; then laid down her pallet and brushes."

"Well," she said, with a wan attempt at her bantering smile, "what do you think of me as a landscape painter?"

"I think you've been wasting your time on the thing you've been doing. There's genius in that."

The bell rang. She hesitated. Then went to the door. Mrs. Brownley, serenely smiling, hazel eyes wistful, appealing, stood there.

"I didn't phone. I was in the neighborhood and I took a chance of your being in."

"Come in," Patricia invited.

"Dadums, this is Mrs. Brownley. She was at Palm Beach when we were there. I called her The Lady in Sand. I ran into her the other evening in—Rue de l'Opera. We didn't speak in Palm Beach but we spoke in Rue de l'Opera," she added with a brittle laugh.

In this way she let Mrs. Brownley know she had told her father nothing.

"Americans always speak away from home," he smiled after the greetings. "They may live in the same apartment house in New York and never speak; but in the Boulevards of Paris they are friends."

"Sit down, Mrs. Brownley," said

Pleurisy Is Related To Other Ills

Science Associates It With Disturbances of the Lung Proper

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHEN I WAS a young doctor pleurisy was looked upon as a simple and harmless disease. Most sufferers from it were treated at home with simple remedies. It is now believed that a positive relationship exists between pleurisy and tuberculosis. Because of this, repeated attacks of pleurisy should serve as warnings of the need of careful medical care and supervision. An individual susceptible to pleurisy is usually susceptible to tuberculosis.

Recent research shows that many cases of mild tuberculosis are neglected, overlooked by reason of the same carelessness which attaches to the treatment of pleurisy. Though these studies are still in the experimental stage, the real meaning of pleurisy cannot be overlooked. Pleurisy, too, may be a forerunner of pneumonia. It may follow pneumonia. Indeed, it is usually associated with some disturbance of the lung proper.

Attacks Without Warning

Pleurisy makes its attack without warning. The victim is suddenly taken ill with a pain in the chest. The pain is made worse by taking a deep breath. It is relieved by restrained breathing. For this reason strapping the chest with adhesive plaster gives great relief.

As its name implies, pleurisy is an inflammation of the pleura, the membrane lining which surrounds the lung. The inflammation is caused by germs which reach the pleura through the lungs or through the blood stream. There are different types of pleurisy, each caused by its own germ.

Sometimes complaint is made of symptoms which resemble, yet may not be pleurisy. I would advise that a person so afflicted consult with his physician and let him determine what is wrong.

An X-ray picture may be advisable. In every case of repeated attacks of pleurisy, X-ray examination of the chest is imperative.

Please bear in mind that neglect of the health leads to lowered resistance. Among other ailments, that causes pleurisy. Lack of sleep, excessive fatigue, exposure to cold and dampness, and improper food are a few of the things that must be avoided.

I want to warn you against the danger of home remedies and other home treatment in cases of pleurisy. An attack of pleurisy must be considered as a serious matter. As I have told you it is a menace to health when neglected. It requires trained care.

NEWS of the... American Legion

AMERICAN LEGION TO AID FIGHT ON WHITE PLAGUE

The American Legion in every state is expected to aid in the efforts of the National Tuberculosis Association, and such co-operation has been pledged the organization by Louis A. Johnson, national commander.

"In these days of depression," the national commander has written, "the efforts against tuberculosis must not be lessened. As a nation, we are still profiting from the cumulative efforts of the anti-tuberculosis movement of previous years. The machinery for the control and prevention of tuberculosis, including clinics, sanatoriums, open air schools, medical and nursing services, and research and educational activities, is still functioning today at practically full efficiency. This winter will be a hard fight for many and will bring increased threats to the hard-earned gains in the war against tuberculosis."

"Public opinion demands that the present efficiency in this work shall not be impaired. The American Legion is pleased to co-operate all over the country during the month of December in the sale of Christmas seals to finance the work of the Tuberculosis Association throughout the United States. The great volunteer public health movement deserves the support of all interested in the health of America."

LETTER TO EDITOR

Texas OWES THE COUNTRY AN APOLOGY

Editor, Circleville Herald.

I CAN scarcely conceive of a fair-minded and self-respecting member of the Democratic party, endorsing the attitude of John Nance Garner in his impudent and hysterical performances for the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

If the mighty "Empire" of Texas isn't ashamed of him by this time it certainly ought to be. "Me" Ferguson, by comparison, is a "statesman" of real parts. And if she will take time off and go to Washington and lay the honorable John Nance across her lap and apply the family footlock vigorously where it will do the most good, she will command the respect and gratitude of a humiliated and thoroughly disgusted nation.

The defeat of his pet baby, the repeal resolution, was an emphatic and deserved rebuke. He has already demonstrated his unfitness as a representative in Congress and will probably further demonstrate that unfitness in administering the office vice president. I am not suggesting any extraordinary fitness of Mr. Roosevelt for the presidency when I offer the opinion that no greater calamity could befall the American people, than that of it becoming necessary for Mr. Garner with his beer and pork-barrel tendencies, to succeed to the presidency. From such a misfortune as that, may the Lord deliver us.

Up until the national convention at Chicago, Mr. Garner had succeeded admirably in fooling the dregs as to his attitude on prohibition and the 18th Amendment. At that convention he finally convinced himself that the wets were on the up-grade and that if he expected to remain in politics, and possibly be nominated for president or vice president, he must join Mr. Roosevelt and the rest of the wet claqueurs for beer and repeal. He very probably reasoned, also, that the south was going wet this winter and that the psychological moment had arrived for him to lead the noisy rabble to an imminent and glorious victory.

The vote of southern congressmen, Monday on his repeal resolution, opened his eyes to the fact that the south is still dry; that it did not become regular at the recent election because it had turned wet, at all, but because the southern dry Democratic could see little, if any difference between

"That's all I have. But I'll come another time." Her eyes fell on the picture. "How splendid!" She moved toward it, and it developed that she knew something of the technique of painting.

"Yes, I studied once; but I had no talent," she sighed.

They urged her to stay, and she and Mr. Braithwait talked pictures and the Louvre while Patricia prepared some sandwiches and coffee.

Mrs. Brownley had a cup of coffee and was finally prevailed on to have a sandwich. Patricia forced herself to eat one because her father was watching. She wondered why the woman had come. Was she really so lonely? And how could she visit today. . . . But maybe she had to do something. . . . I always heard that rivals hated each other. . . . It's odd. I don't hate her. I admire her very much, and rather like her too. . . .

"What is the name of it?" asked Mrs. Brownley, her eyes on the picture.

"The Mirage," said Patricia. "And where is the mirage?"

"In the woman's mind. You see how she's toiling to reach that cactus? As she sees it, that's a shade tree."

"Oh, how tragic! And away off on her right there's a sort of shadow—a difference, as if it were not so blazing over there."

"Yes, that shadow is thrown by a big shade tree just outside the picture."

After lunch Mr. Braithwait went for a walk, saying he would leave them to discuss the shops.

"You are fortunate," sighed Mrs. Brownley, her eyes on the canvas. Patricia was clearing the table. When she had finished she flung herself on the couch. "In what way am I fortunate?"

"In having something you can do. It makes you so independent. Two big tears stole from under the lowered lids and rolled down her cheeks. "I've always been dependent. My husband was a beast; yet I lived with him seven years because I didn't know what else to do. Then he left me. Until recently, however, he sent me money every month. He made lots, and he wasn't stingy. So I lived for four years as a wife who had neither the position nor the freedom of a widow."

"You could have divorced him and gotten alimony."

"Yes, I could have, but he wasn't bound to a business of his own. He is a salaried man. He earns forty thousand a year. But he could earn it as easily in California or in New York or Chicago. I couldn't have forced him to pay me alimony even if the courts had given it to me. I'd have had to follow him and keep following to get it."

"He'd probably have paid it to you of his own will—since that was what he was doing anyway."

"No. He didn't want a divorce. He made it a condition that he would support me so long as I didn't divorce him. If I did that, he'd move. I could come and arrest him; but as soon as he got out of jail he'd move again."

"I think he was bluffing. He couldn't have made many such moves without getting a lot of publicity, and no firm would have wanted a man likely to leave any minute to dodge alimony."

"Maybe you're right. But I was afraid to risk it. Then I met—Jimmie—that's the awful part of it—and Nolan divorced me."

Pleurisy Is Related To Other Ills

Science Associates It With Disturbances of the Lung Proper

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

Dr. Copeland

WHEN I WAS a young doctor pleurisy was looked upon as a simple and harmless disease. Most sufferers from it were treated at home with simple remedies. It is probable that patients got well, not because of the treatment applied, but because it is a self-limiting disease. By this I mean it is one of those ailments that run a definite course and unless complications set in, clears up by itself.

It is now believed that a positive relationship exists between pleurisy and tuberculosis. Because of this, repeated attacks of pleurisy should serve as warnings of the need of careful medical care and supervision. An individual susceptible to pleurisy is usually susceptible to tuberculosis.

Recent research shows that many cases of mild tuberculosis are neglected, overlooked by reason of the same carelessness which attaches to the treatment of pleurisy. Though these studies are still in the experimental stage, the real meaning of pleurisy cannot be overlooked. Pleurisy, too, may be a forerunner of pneumonia. It may follow pneumonia. Indeed, it is usually associated with some disturbance of the lung proper.

Attacks Without Warning

Pleurisy makes its attack without warning. The victim is suddenly taken ill with a pain in the chest. The pain is made worse by taking a deep breath. It is relieved by restrained breathing. For this reason strapping the chest with adhesive plaster gives great relief.

As its name implies, pleurisy is an inflammation of the pleura, the membrane lining which surrounds the lung. The inflammation is caused by germs which reach the pleura through the lungs or through the blood stream. There are different types of pleurisy, each caused by its own germ.

Sometimes complaint is made of symptoms which resemble, yet may not be pleurisy. I would advise that a person so afflicted consult with his physician and let him determine what is wrong.

An X-ray picture may be advisable. In every case of repeated attacks of pleurisy, X-ray examination of the chest is imperative.

Please bear in mind that neglect of the health leads to lowered resistance. Among other ailments, that invites pleurisy. Lack of sleep, excessive fatigue, exposure to cold and dampness, and improper food are a few of the things that must be avoided.

I want to warn you against the danger of home remedies and other home treatment in cases of pleurisy. An attack of pleurisy must be considered as a serious matter. As I have told you it is a menace to health when neglected. It requires trained care.

Answers to Health Queries

Bellevue Boy. Q.—Would you advise, truss or operation when one is ruptured?

A.—Operation is the only certain cure for rupture but the truss may give temporary relief.

NEWS of the... American Legion

AMERICAN LEGION TO AID FIGHT ON WHITE PLAGUE

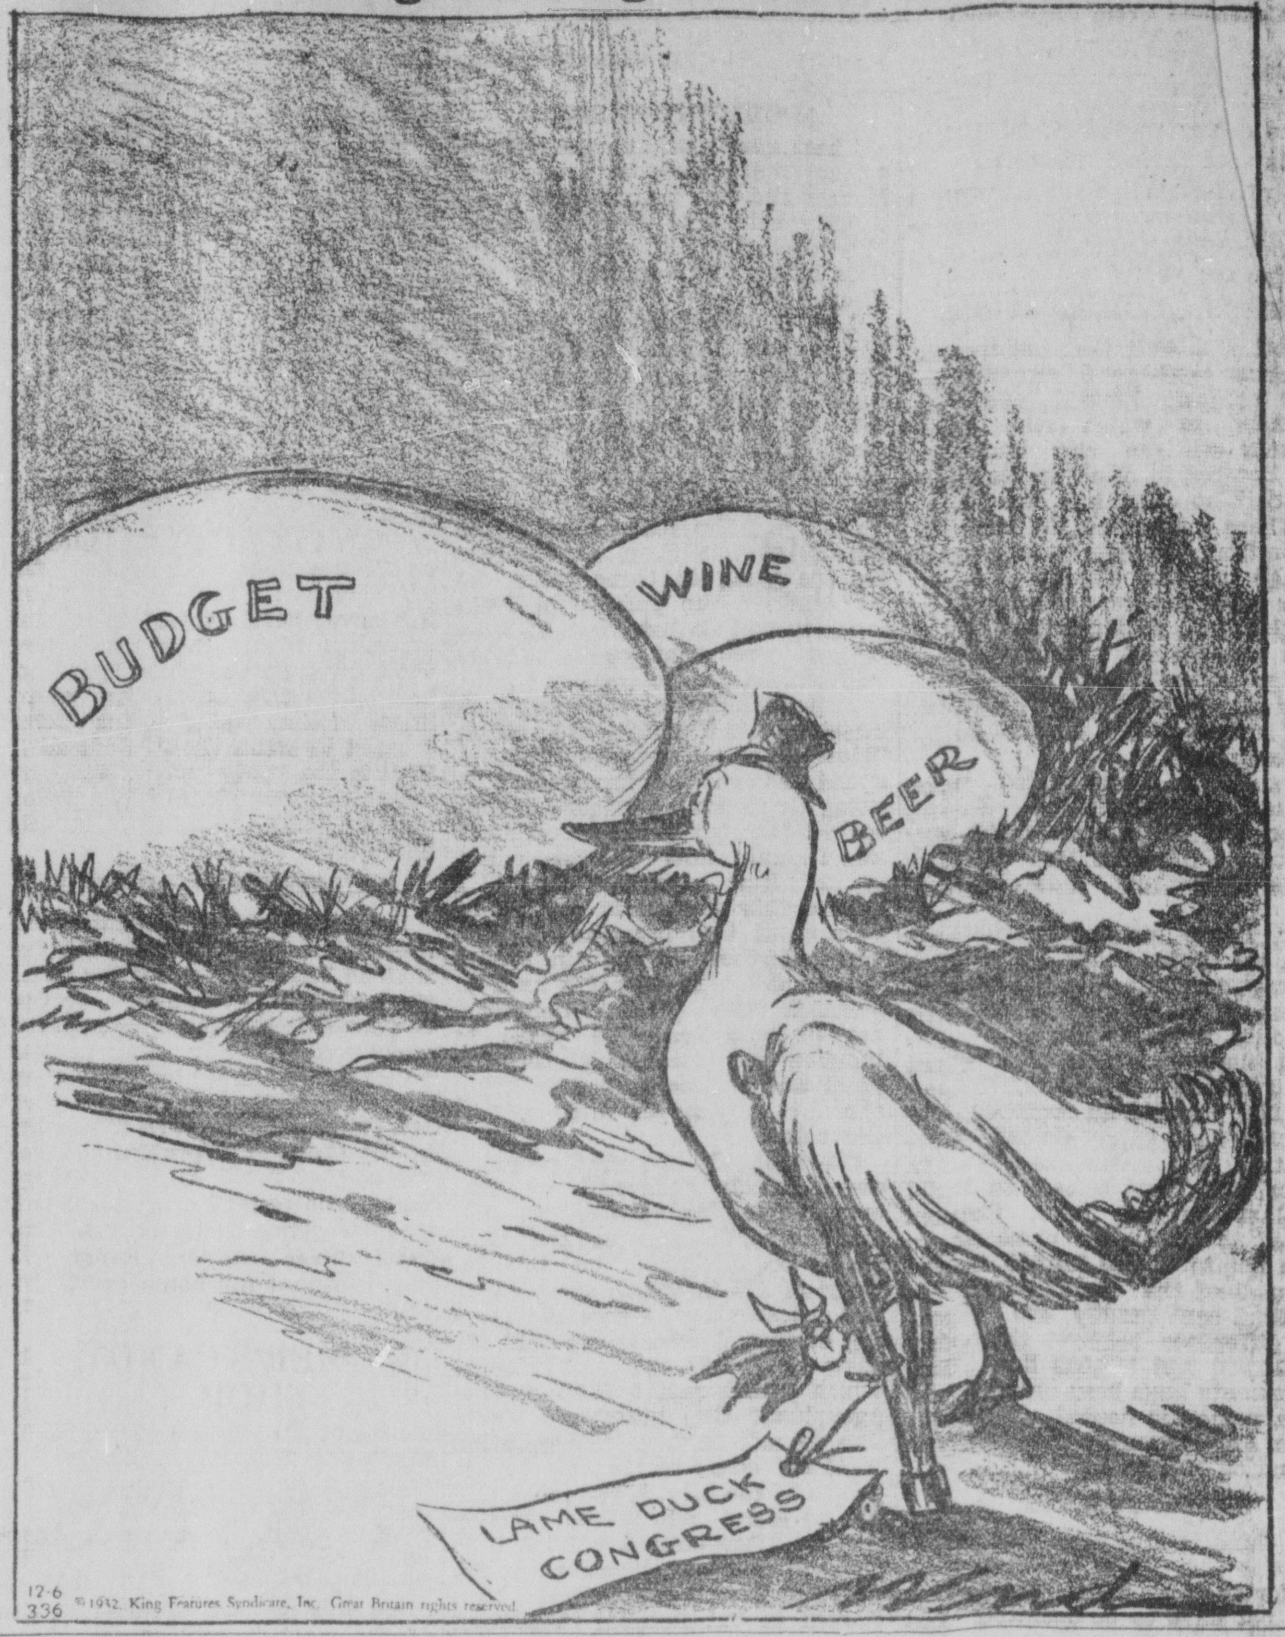

The American Legion in every state is expected to aid in the efforts of the National Tuberculosis Association, and such cooperation has been pledged the organization by Louis A. Johnson, national commander.

"In these days of depression," the national commander has written, "the efforts against tuberculosis must not be lessened. As a nation, we are still profiting from the cumulative efforts of the anti-tuberculosis movement of prior years. The machinery for the control and prevention of tuberculosis, including clinics, sanatoriums, open air schools, medical and nursing services, and research and educational activities, is still functioning today at practically full efficiency. This winter will be a hard fight for many and will bring increased threats to the hard-earned gains in the war against tuberculosis."

"Public opinion demands that the present efficiency in this work shall not be impaired. The American Legion is pleased to cooperate all over the country during the month of December in the sale of Christmas seals to finance the work of the Tuberculosis Associations throughout the United States. This great volunteer public health movement deserves the support of all interested in the health of America."

A Big Hatching for ANY Bird

LETTER TO EDITOR

TEXAS OWES THE COUNTRY AN APOLOGY

Editor, Circleville Herald:

I CAN scarcely conceive of a fair-minded and self-respecting member of the Democratic party, endorsing the attitude of John Nance Garner in his impudent and hysterical performances for the repeal of the 18 Amendment.

If the mighty "Empire" of Texas isn't ashamed of him by this time it certainly ought to be. "Ma" Ferguson, by comparison, is a "statesman" of real parts. And if she will take time off and go to Washington and lay the honorable John Nance across her lap and apply the family bootjack vigorously where it will do the most good, she will command the respect and gratitude of a humiliated and thoroughly disgusted nation.

The defeat of his pet baby, the repeal resolution, was an emphatic and deserved rebuke. He has already demonstrated his unfitness as a representative in Congress and will probably further demonstrate that unfitness in administering the office vice president. I am not suggesting any extraordinary fitness of Mr. Roosevelt for the presidency when I offer the opinion that no greater calamity could befall the American people, than that of it becoming necessary for Mr. Garner with his beer and pork-barrel tendencies, to succeed to the presidency. From such a misfortune as that, may the Lord deliver us.

Up until the national convention at Chicago, Mr. Garner had succeeded admirably in fooling the drys as to his attitude on prohibition and the 18th Amendment. At that convention he finally convinced himself that the wets were on the up-grade and that if he expected to remain in politics, and possibly be nominated for president or vice president, he must join Mr. Roosevelt and the rest of the wet claquers for beer and repeal. He very probably reasoned, also, that the south was going wet this whirl and that the psychological moment had arrived for him to lead the noisy rabble to an imminent and glorious victory.

The vote of southern congressmen, Monday, on his repeal resolution, opened his eyes to the fact that the south is still dry; that it did not become regular at the recent election because it had turned wet, at all, but because the southern dry Democratic could see little, if any difference between the party platforms on the prohibition issue; and being Democrats, they went back to party regularity for the time being.

Anyhow, it was not the wet crowd that won the election for the Democrats. And Democratic wet candidates were, simply, the beneficiaries. The hard times and the madness almost to the verge of insanity, of the unemployed in industry and on the farm, who were determined upon a change of administration, including millions of dissatisfied Republicans, were the causes which led to the landslide and put into office Roosevelt, Garner and the whole pseudo outfit of repeal and beer statesmen with whom the country must be plagued for the next two and four years to come.

The country at large is entitled to an apology from the state of Texas for imposing upon it a politician of the caliber and insolence of John Nance Garner.

BIRD SELLS HUNTER

PHILADELPHIA—A freak bird, which has stumped ornithologists concerning its species, has been placed in the Academy of Natural Sciences here. The bird, which resembles a goose, was killed after it had struck down a man hunting rabbits. It has a wing spread of more than 6 feet.

When Women Choose Gifts for Smart Men..

THEY choose at the store where smart men buy . . . That is if they're smart. A man always looks for the label and if it's from his favorite store his appreciation of the gift and his admiration for your judgment increases tenfold. And whether or not they knew this was his favorite store women with the unerring feminine instinct for quality at a price would come here anyhow.

NEED MORE TOYS

Collection Increasing. Firemen Report But Many More Are Now Needed.

More toys are necessary to insure every child in Circleville a Merry Christmas, according to local firemen who are conducting a campaign to help the poor children enjoy the yuletide days.

Although in the past few days there have been quite a few more contributors to the toy collection the firemen want more so as to be sure to have enough to distribute on Christmas eve when they will assume the role of Santa Claus to the needy.

The public is invited by the firemen to inspect the toys that have thus far been repaired and made useful.

Chief Talmer Wise in commenting upon the supply of toys which have been contributed thus far said, "We hope that those who have not brought in their old toys yet will do so before Christmas is upon us so that we may have all the toys in workable condition and in a presentable condition to distribute."
